The theme of the race "Run the Frog & Toad" celebrates the famous Cockney Rhyming Slang dialect of East London. This was a form of English used by east-end workers that their managers would not understand if overheard. Rhyming slang replaces words with a rhyming word, for examples "frog and load" meaning "road". This dialect is no longer used other than in fun so you won't need to carry a dictionary. It is unlikely that anyone will rabbit and pork (talk) to you using the slang - unless you are in the rubber dub dub (pub).

The 29th World Airline Road Race Festival is from Wednesday 22nd to Saturday 25th September 2010. Over 1,000 airline employees and their families and friends will converge on London for the four-day festival of culture and entertainment focused on 5k and 10k races. Many will run just for the fun of it and others compete for individual and team trophies that will be presented at the Festival's Awards Party. The festival venue is The Royal Victoria Dock in East London. The race course is flat and traffic-free with the start and finish at the EXCeL exhibition and conference centre. The main festival events are all nearby.

Royal Victoria Dock

Built in 1855 and named after the reigning monarch Queen Victoria this was the first London Dock designed specifically for large steam ships. Commercial activity ceased in 1980 and the dock has now been redeveloped for leisure activities and with the adjacent dockland used in part for ExCeL and in part for housing. As a race course the dockside is fast, flat and traffic free.

ExCeL Conference and Exhibition Centre

London's leading conference and exhibition centre. ExCeL dominates Royal Victoria Dock and on its campus are numerous hotels and restaurants and no fewer than three Docklands Light Railway stations that link in with the London Underground.

Novotel London ExCeL Hotel Festival Headquarters

The Novotel is a new generation 4 star hotel ideally placed on the race course and chosen to be the Festival Headquarters and the venue for Registration and other events. The Festival website has room reservation details and deals for this and other nearby hotels.

The Fox@ExCeL

A large traditional style London Pub built on three levels within an old dockside warehouse.

The World Airline Road Race

The World Airline Road Race was first held in San Francisco in 1982 with teams invited from all the world's airlines. Held every year since this makes the 2010 London Festival the 29th. The event is being run by a host committee from the British Airways Athletics Club under the auspices of the World Airline Road Race International Committee.

International Committee

The role of the International Committee is to ensure that the long tradition of successive successful World Airline Road Races continues into the future. Visit the International Website for more history and for details of previous and future events:
